

You are now leaving my official website to view content on a third-party site, in this case, YouTube. I'll be here when you get back, but you should know that neither I nor the House of Representatives has control over the advertising or other content that you'll find on that site. I know that you know this, but it never hurts to make things clear.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Markie", is positioned to the right of the main text block.
